Japanese Language and Culture

Konichiwa! Our native Japanese teacher provides great exposure to Japanese language and culture. The classes use Total Physical Response (TPR), a style that has been proven the best method of language acquisition. Games, Songs, and other activities will make learning Japanese fun for everyone. Classes are open to all ages.

Explore the wonders of China: Beginning Chinese

Ni Hao! Explore the wonders of China! Speak and understand Mandarin Chinese through games, role-play and storytelling. We use actual textbooks used to teach kids Chinese, touching on China's colorful history and customs. This course introduces students to the world's last pictorial language, in cultural context.

Language Methods

We use the Total Physical Response technique in our language instruction. TPR is the world's premier language method.

TPR's greatest strength is its utilization of every part of the body in order to assist the brain in memorization. Students learn a foreign language like their first language – first gaining oral comprehension, and the progressing into reading and writing. With TPR, the right brain's factual processing (of information such as language acquisition) combines with the left brain's control of movement, exercise, and creativity. This integration serves as the catalyst for a faster, more complete, more exciting learning experience.

Programs descriptions

Basic Spanish

In this class, students learn conventional and basic Spanish language using the Total Physical Response (TPR) technique – a “learn by doing” approach. Students examine traditional food and practices. Emphasis will be placed on everyday phrases and vocabulary through stories, myths, and lessons on culture. The intermediate class will allow students who have previous background in Spanish to explore the language further, also using the Total Physical Response (TPR) technique.

Future Einsteins – Creative & Inventive Thinkers:

Students learn about classic inventors and their inventions, as well as the scientific methodology of resourceful thinking. We will explore biology, earth science, chemistry and physics at age-appropriate levels.

1,2,3 Chess!

The heat of battle, the mental strain, the fear of defeat! No, not hand-to-hand combat, it is chess! This course will introduce students to the love of the game, and the ins and outs of classic chess strategies.

Arts & crafts

This course allows children to have fun and develop their creativity while making a variety of different art projects. Children will have the opportunity to finger paint, make collage, use watercolors, draw with colored pencils, and make their own greeting cards.

Empowered Learning:

Organizational and Study Skills

In this course, our curriculum shows students that learning is not a passive process to be endured, but an exciting and never-ending process that lasts a lifetime. This dynamic class allows each student the potential to become knowledgeable in their own favorite subjects, as well as in new areas of academic interest. Given a useful “toolbox” of methods, students can draw meaning more efficiently from text, and can enhance their literary expression.
